VINEYARDS

Clinking wine glasses is one of those time-honored traditions we perform without even thinking. Some claim it was originally meant to drive away demons. Others believe the idea was to slosh a little bit of wine into your drinking partner's glass—that way, he couldn't poison you without risking dying himself. As exciting as those theories are, they're just not true. The real reasons we touch our glasses are much simpler. Back before clinking was invented, a toast involved four senses: touch, taste, sight and smell. But as the manufacturing of wine glasses transformed into an art, people began appreciating the fine sounds of struck stemware and voila, the clink was incorporated into the toasting routine.
